PLANNED MAINTENANCE SYSTEM (PMS)

Did you know rinsing dive equipment with freshwater and letting it dry isn't always enough to safeguard against saltwater corrosion, dry rotting, or verdigris?

Arduous marine conditions result in higher maintenance costs and equipment turnover. Regulators, underwater breathing apparatuses, and buoyancy compensators are a few examples of dive equipment with a shorter-than-average shelf life. Soft goods or anything rubber, such as flapper valves, rubber valves, O-rings, and seats - need to be checked, lubricated, and replaced often to ensure safe diving conditions.

ADS is a great resource for supplying parts, lubricants, or special tools on any planned maintenance systems (PMS). Put our knowledge and expertise to work for you!
